

It is your responsibility to observe the legal use of copyrighted data or information.

Abuse of these regulations and policies will result in immediate withdrawal of all ID and password access privileges, loss of library privileges and will be reported to the academic authorities or other appropriate authority.

Visitors to the Ingalls Library and Museum Archives agree to indemnify and hold harmless the Cleveland Museum of Art, its officers, trustees and employees, from and against all claims or actions arising out of or related to such visitor's (a) use of library or archived items; and (b) violation of this use agreement or any of the rules or procedures of the Ingalls Library or Museum Archives.

Online Databases

The United States Copyright Law (Title 17, U.S. Code) governs the making of copies of copyrighted materials. The person using the databases offered here is liable for any infringement.

The following are general restrictions on the use of the electronic databases. Others may also apply. Please request information from the Director of Library and Archives about restrictions associated with specific databases offered by the library.

- Access is allowed only to employees of this institution at the employee's desktop, or when allowed to authorized visitors at the library's online public access terminals.
- Copies of data from the databases may be made as long as they do not contain substantial or significant segments of the databases.
- Information from the databases may not be used for interlibrary lending, including the provision of copies to libraries, institutions, or persons. No part of the databases may be transmitted over the Internet.
- Databases may be used only for research, study, and non-commercial purposes.
- Information from databases may not be used to create derivative or competitive works.

Ingalls Library Image Database Restrictions

The United States Copyright Law (Title 17, U.S. Code) governs the making of copies of copyrighted materials.

Digital images in the online system of the Image Library are copyrighted either by the Cleveland Museum of Art (CMA) or by an outside rights holder, and thus there are restrictions on their use. The person using the image database is liable for any infringement.

The following are general restrictions on the use of electronic images. Others may also apply. Please request information from Image Services about restrictions associated with specific images offered by the library.

- Access to high-resolution images is available only to employees of the Cleveland Museum of Art at their desktop, or to authorized visitors at the library's public access terminals.
- Images may NOT be transmitted over the Internet.
- Images may NOT be downloaded for publication, scholarly or otherwise, or for any purpose other than teaching or research without written permission from the appropriate copyright holder.
- Images may NOT be resold, leased, transferred, or distributed in whole or in part.
- The Image Library database may be used ONLY FOR research, study, teaching, lecturing, and non-commercial purposes.
- Images may NOT be modified, corrupted, or altered.
- Images may NOT be transferred to other libraries, institutions, or persons.

I understand and will abide by the above rules.
